

The Cowan

Kenny Klein & Tzipora Katz

1. Let me tell you the sto - ry of a cow - an one night who went to a
2. The priest - ess walked o - ver, lif - ted his head, gazed in - to his
3. Our friend is now with us, a pa - gan at heart; his sto - ry has

6
cir - cle with eyes wide and bright. The cir - cle was o - pen, the La - dy's light eyes, still no words were said. He o - pened his hand, said I know not end - ed, his life: a new start. To walk in her gar - den, sing out her shone. Our friend gent - ly smiled, and knew he was home.

12
much. The priest - ess laughed light - ly, said "per - fect love and trust."
song, laugh in her sun - shine for all life - times long.

17
E - cho, e - cho, A - ra - a - di - a! E - cho, e - cho, He - cate and Frey - a! We'll teach our chil - dren year af - ter year, to love with their hearts, live with - out fear.

27

Willow and Ash Branch

Kenny Klein & Tzipora Katz

Wil - low and ash branch, tied 'neath the moon. Lend us your mag - ic, fin - ish the rune.

9
As the trip - le god - dess, all three en - twined, maid, crone and mo - ther, an - cient as time.

17
Dance 'round the cir - cle, dance where ye will, tra - ces of mag - ic, e - cho - ing still

25
All hearts are one heart, when all gods are one. Here in the cir - cle, the spell has be - gun.